

BATH HIGH SCHOOL PRESERVATION

PIRATE'S REVENGE

SIXTH EDITION

NEWSLETTER

MAY, 2010

Are we there yet? This question surfaced many times during the past nine months regarding the revision to the Bylaws for the Bath High School Preservation group. Today, we can honestly say "yes" the Bylaws are revised, completed, and finalized. Organizational bylaws regulate only the organization to which they apply and are generally concerned with the operation of the organization, setting out the form, manner or procedure in which the agency should run. Bylaws widely vary from one group to another, but generally cover such topics as how board members are elected, how the meetings should be conducted, and what officers the organization will have with a description of their duties. A common mnemonic device for remembering the typical bylaws is "NOMOMECPA", pronounced NO mommy, see pa! It stands for Name, Object, Members, Officers, Meetings, Executive board, Committees, Parliamentary authority, Amendment.

In parliamentary procedure, particularly Robert's Rules of Order, the bylaws are generally the supreme governing document of an organization, superseded only by the charter of an incorporated society.

The bylaws contain the most fundamental principles and rules regarding the nature of the organization. It was once common practice for organizations to have two separate governing documents, a constitution and bylaws, but this has fallen out of favor because of the ease of use, increased clarity, and reduced chance of conflict inherent in a single unified document. This single document, while properly referred to as bylaws, is now our operating document on how to conduct our activities.

One might ask, yet again, "What's the big deal?" Simply put, if you do not have current Bylaws to operate the organization this in turn jeopardizes your tax exempt 501 (c)(3) nonprofit standing with the Internal Revenue Service.

Furthermore, as we continue our efforts to save the Bath High School, board members will explore every opportunity to seek grants to leverage our own dollars to accomplish our primary goal of saving this historic structure. The Bylaw component is a fundamental document for every grant application that I have been associated with over the years. In addition, Dawn Grant has been contacted about assisting us with the up and coming grants, as well.

Alumni Learn Tips to Make Dream Reality

Members from three organizations — all with the same mission — of saving old Bath High School — met in February at Bath Christian Church to learn where, when and how to apply for grant monies.

Dawn Grant, a grant writer, who presented the seminar "Make your dreams a reality with grant funds," told members of the Bath High School Preservation, the Historic Bath Commission and the Historic Bath Foundation that they were already ahead of the curve because they each had the same goal, which is to reopen the old high school for community use. "You need to paint a picture as to why Bath needs this building," Grant said, adding that data to back up reasons increases support of a grant application. "Provide peak times or tourism numbers if available." Most grants also usually ask for four benefits to the community, according to Grant.

It is also known as the ripple effect, Grant said. She asked audience members to share the potential benefits. Use of the high school will create a sense of community in Bath. Arts and culture, safety, economic development, tourism, educational tools are potential benefits, according to the audience members. Grant then asked the attendees to write a description of their organization and the community.

"We have described each agency well, but we haven't described our community as well," said Surry Everett, president of the Historic Bath Foundation and a member of both the high school preservation and historic Bath commission. "Historical Bath is larger than the town. We are not really talking about the town of Bath, but more the community of Bath. That is what the school building is all about." Marti Buchanan, a member of the Bath High School Preservation, agreed. "It is hard to communicate such a big area dripping with history. There is so much to it and we are so excited," Buchanan said. "We must unite and move forward." Everett said, "The school held the community together."

Sue Conway, a member of the Bath High School Preservation, said, "There is more at stake than saving a building, it's a symbol." Patricia Mansfield, a member of the Bath High School Preservation, agreed. "We want the heart [of the community] to return," she said.

Grant suggested the three organizations find a point where the ideas intersect. "This can drive you forward," Grant said. "You all have common ground to drive you. Capture and articulate in a paragraph the definition of your community." Once a community description is agreed upon, Grant said the next step is to set goals and a timeline for construction. The audience quickly came up with two steps, including soliciting bids by April to stabilize the exterior of the building for completion by July. "There is a unique, cool situation here in Bath," Grant said. "Henry Ford's quote,

'Coming together is a beginning, staying together is progress and working together is success' could be the driving force of this group.'

A Tribute to Two Special Alumni

The idea of Bath High School Preservation newsletter 'Pirates Revenge' in 2007 came from Bath High Alumni, Betsy Douglas Gray. As Editor, she paired with another alumni, Joanne Tuten Childs, as co-editor. Publishing five issues, they have been quite a wonderful team and kept us up-to-date on all the news and happenings of the most important building in the heart of Colonial Bath Towne since 1921. An estimated 3,373 students received their formative education in this building. Many of you rallied and helped save this building in 2005.

Betsy Gray and Joanne Childs have decided to step down from their positions and continue their support to the project in other areas. Being devoted and caring about their school they will always be involved in this restoration project. Being a big part of honoring our past they have contributed to designing our future.

The difference between the possible and the impossible lies in determination. Both Editor and Co-Editor have shown determination, and for that and all your contributions we thank you for a job well done. Personal integrity and fulfillment comes from doing something major and on your own. Both of you have definitely accomplished your goal. 'Volunteers give the time of their lives---and they get back a joy that money cannot buy.'

Betsy and Joanne have given their time and created a newsletter to help save our history.

Third Annual Oyster Roast

The writer, Jonathan Swift, once noted, "He was a bold man that first ate an oyster."

Judging from the turnout at BHSPS' third annual oyster roast on February 20th, we are very grateful for that first bold man! More than 300 hungry individuals helped themselves to abundant oysters, trimmings, and various other foods and beverages served there.

I found many "pearls" at this year's oyster roast: Bath High School schoolmates from years gone by; some I had not seen since high school! Many people from Pantego and Belhaven schools also attended and we remember them from sports rivalries and other combined school events. I noted that many of the folks there were new residents of Bath and surrounding areas who want to help restore Pirate glory to our old school.

I am so happy I went. If you missed this year's Roast, be sure to come next year. Who knows, you might see a favorite Teacher or Principal or even an "old flame"!

Legacy

I commend Bath High School Preservation for your coalition which has inspired a community. The collaborative efforts will bring further success and will set in motion the opportunity for providing a Cultural Center in the heart of Bath. BHSP members are doing more than saving the school; you are helping preserve Bath's historic character because what happens on that corner will have a lasting affect on the entire Historic District.

~Karen Sayer, Chairman Bath Historic District Commission

Message from Peggy

Great accomplishments deserve great recognition and I applaud the Bath High School Preservation Board and Officers and our BHSP members for your perseverance and dedication. Even greater things are ahead for BHSP members, BHS alumni, Bath citizens and the community, as we take ownership of a prominent building in an ideal location. As the largest contributing structure to the National Register Listing, we are in clear view of Bath's other prominent structures: Van der Veer and Palmer- Marsh houses, St. Thomas Church, and Swindell's Cash Store. What happens on this corner happens to the oldest town in North Carolina. Our vision, in the initial phase, has given the community the real potential for passing along a historic accomplishment for generations to enjoy. My resignation as President on June 1, 2010 is a well-timed passing of the baton, to those who are best prepared for the next phase of the project. I look forward to seeing the business of grant procurement and staged renovation proceed in a well-organized fashion to the result we have already seen in our mind's eye!! Thank you for everything you have done and will do, as we move into the next phase of work under new leadership. Your support is invaluable and your involvement will always be key!!

All the best, Peggy
